Looking for a Volunteer Opportunity?

There is a small school for Somali refugee children located in the Bole Michael area. It doesn't get any funding, so there is no money to hire professional teachers. We are looking for volunteers, who would be willing to teach a class of about 17 children (ages 4-12) for one or two days a week (2 hours per day). Possible subjects are English, Math and Art & Games. Teaching days are Saturday to Wednesday mornings. The schedule is flexible, so I'm sure we can fit you in. You may come by for a talk and see the school and children before deciding. So far we have three expats (one of them is American) volunteering, and it's possible to teach some lessons together with another teacher. The children are adorable and could really use your help.

Photovoice project

Mother Child Resource Center

Request for donations of old cameras for the Mother Child Resource Center in Addis Ababa for Photovoice. Photovoice is a research strategy that uses photography as a tool for social change. It is a process that gives people the opportunity to record, reflect and critique personal and community issues in a creative way.
